

Aiphone and ASSA ABLOY bring wireless intelligence to door management by linking Aperio locks with AC Nio™ access control.

KEY FEATURES

- ✓ Wire-free installation
- ✓ Unified management in AC Nio
- ✓ Real-time status and events

Aiphone and ASSA ABLOY deliver a smooth path to expanding access control without the usual construction headaches. By connecting Aperio wireless locks directly to your Aiphone access control system, you can bring secure coverage to more openings with speed and flexibility. This wire-free approach lets you add doors where traditional cabling would be difficult or costly, giving you a simple way to scale without sacrificing reliability. Aperio devices drop into existing spaces with little disruption while still providing the same sense of control you expect from a fully wired environment.

Once online, AC Nio becomes the single command center for both wired hardware and Aperio wireless locks. Permissions, schedules, events, and visibility all sit in one familiar interface, so operators stay focused on their workflow rather than juggling separate platforms. Real-time updates on door status, battery health, audit trails, and credential activity help teams respond faster and maintain clear oversight of every opening across the site. The broad support for RFID and mobile credentials also means the system adapts to whatever credential strategy you prefer.

This integration brings together dependable access control from Aiphone and proven wireless locking from ASSA ABLOY. The result is a unified solution that makes expansion easier, keeps management simple, and delivers a consistent user experience across all connected openings.
